I just don't have the time to do everything I need to do. I have always wanted to do that but can't seem to make enough time. I don't have the time for a social life. There's just one last thing I have to do before I leave. Do these sentiments sound familiar? If so, it is likely that you are a high achiever. As such, it is a part of your psychology to want to succeed at everything you do, and to continually seek new challenges to conquer. If you fit this description, read on and discover a tried and true method of time management that will change your life forever. One word of caution: effective time management is a serious endeavor that will require your whole-hearted commitment and active participation in order to succeed. I promise you that Effective Time Management for High Achievers will produce results if you are committed to following each of the steps outlined in this process: 1. Build an Action Plan 2. Take Advantage of Existing...
